

How do you know there is a God?

Examples to use

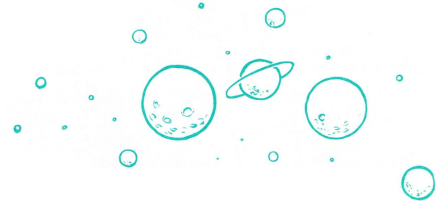

If this clock

could make itself –

You need no clockmaker to explain that the clock is there.

Here's another clockwork –

Everything on time – seasons, tides, years, months, days, the position of the PLANETS and the STARS, etc.

If a little clockwork in the clock on top needs a clockmaker, -

Doesn't the big clockwork need a Maker, too?

An astronomer used this one, -

See this globe –

It made itself

Foolish you say?

Then foolish to believe the real one – of which the man-made globe is only a small imitation – made itself.

Yet the atheist says: “The little one, the imitation, needs a maker, The big one, the real thing, needs no maker.”

(And that is why the Bible says: “The fool says in his heart: there is no God”.)
